- Why must he choose different roads today?

- Where is the scientist going?

- What is the scientist doing at the moment?

MY JOB: Bill, a taxi driver

At the moment, I'm working as a taxi driver. I'm glad that I'm not sitting in an office. I can see famous buildings and meet fascinating people. When I'm not driving, I can relax in my car and read a book.

I sometimes listen to music, but today I'm listening to the radio. There are some problems in our town and I can't use the roads that I usually use. I must choose different roads.

This is important because today I'm driving a scientist to the airport and I mustn't arrive late. She's sitting in the taxi and she's writing notes for an important meeting.
